Dear Editor:

I have known Jennifer Berkenstock for a very long time. My husband and I first met her and her family through our church. Jennifer is a remarkable woman and a good friend. She is always ready to listen and help whenever needed.

She is kind and compassionate with a strong sense of ethics. She is thorough, detail-oriented and very committed to everything she becomes involved in. This includes her law practice, her family, her friends, and her church family.

Jennifer clearly understands the importance of prioritization as well as the importance of following through. She is extremely knowledgeable as an attorney, is a tremendous resource and has 15 years of experience in the area of probate.

Aside from the attributes cited above, one of the things I am most impressed with is that when Jennifer is elected to probate judge, she will devote all her time and attention to insuring that the needs of all of her constituents are met.

To say she would make an outstanding judge of probate would be an understatement!

We will be fortunate to have her.

Sincerely,
Jean P. Loveland- East Hampton
